Enough, Mr. President

By Judy Hodgson

judy@northcoastjournal.com

On Nov. 9, 2016, like many Americans — a majority, in fact — I woke up with a throbbing headache and the realization that Donald Trump had hijacked the Republican party and been elected president. After briefly considering a move to Canada, I was forced to accept the results of our flawed electoral-college system. I felt like we just had to suck it up for four years, and hope Trump didn't start a war or do irreversible harm to our reputation as the world's greatest democracy.

No war yet, but too late for our reputation. His daily barrage of tweet-lies — "California wildfires are being magnified & made worse" by enviros diverting water "into the Pacific Ocean" ("Trump's Fire Tweets Decried as Congressional Delegation Urges Disaster Declaration," Aug. 7) — and vicious, personal attacks on individuals and institutions (Don Lemon, John McCain, the FBI, the intelligence community) are corrosive to our democracy.

Today, Aug. 16, 2018, the North Coast Journal and the Times-Standard, are joining more than 200 newspapers across the U.S. to strongly condemn this president's nonstop attack on one of his favorite targets — the press. Trump hugs the flag and says he loves the Constitution, but that part in the First Amendment about a free press? Not so much.

In his first month in office, Trump started calling the news media "the enemy of the people." He calls reporters "scum" and "slime" at his rallies. Last week Trump pointed to the back of the room at a rally in Pennsylvania and told the audience the media was "fake, fake, disgusting news."

Enough.

These attacks, this vicious rhetoric, have created two very real dangers: Short-term, it increases the dangers inherent in doing our job. Long-term and far more important, it undermines the very basis of our democracy.

Being a reporter in the United States is certainly less dangerous than many professions, like being a firefighter, but not without peril. Reporters cover fires, show up at crime scenes, and sit at the press table at city council and supervisor meetings. We also cover violent criminals, political controversies, protests and potentially volatile political rallies. In late June a mass shooter left five people dead and three injured in a newsroom in Annapolis, Maryland ("Know Your Enemies," July 5).

What damage is this doing to a free press in a democracy?

This is from an editorial by Judy Patrick, vice president of editorial development for the New York Press Association: "When the leader of the free world works to erode the public's trust in the media, the potential for damage is enormous, both here and abroad. We once set an example of free and open government for the world to follow. Now those who seek to suppress the free flow of information are doing so with impunity."

"The time has come for us to stand up to the bullying. The role journalism plays in our free society is too crucial to allow this degradation to continue."

Finally, a footnote to my Republican friends: We need you to stand up to this president and for the core values of the Republican Party. You were for free trade, for standing up to brutal regimes abroad, against growing the deficit, for respecting our justice system and law enforcement. Trump is not who we are and not who you are.

The best to Linda

Editor:

I just wanted to write to wish Linda Stansberry the best in her new endeavors. Linda has great writing skills. From her early columns in the NCJ to her full status as journalist, she has tackled difficult community topics as well as personal observations. Her point of view as a native southern Humboldt is unique and of value to the paper. I have always appreciated her feminist bent. It's been a pleasure reading her work.

Wiz of a Performance

Editor:

My wife and I attended the opening of The Wizard of Oz at the Van Duzer Theatre at HSU on Aug. 3 ("Not in Kansas," Aug. 9).

It is a pleasure and an honor to be part of a community that is able to present such a high-quality product.

Having been to many Humboldt Light Opera Company's productions, I felt The Wizard of Oz was particularly outstanding. The age range of the participants, the quality of the acting, singing and dancing and the great costuming and sets helped set this one apart, and put it into my personal musical "Hall of Fame."

The director, Carol Ryder, and her associates deserve much credit for the skill and perseverance to bring such a complex performance to our community.

Events like the HLOC's The Wizard of Oz allow us to transcend political and social divides and help us realize how much more can be accomplished when we do things in a positive and supportive manner.

I encourage everyone, particularly if they have children, to attend (with their children) this most entertaining event.

Countdown to November

Candidates lining up for a run to the dais

By Kimberly Wear

kim@northcoastjournal.com

The races for 21 city council and mayoral seats up for election this November in Humboldt County are coming into view this week as Eureka ushers in a new true ward era and Arcata residents prepare to decide the fate of the city's most controversial figure.

As the Journal was going to press on Tuesday night, Blue Lake, Fortuna, Rio Dell and Ferndale were accepting nomination papers until Aug. 15 for at least some of their open seats after incumbents did not seek reelection. For the final lineup, visit the Journal's website at www.northcoast-journal.com later this week.

In Arcata, incumbents Sofia Pereira, who is currently serving as mayor, and Brett Watson, vice mayor, will vie for two open seats on the council with candidate Valerie Rose-Campbell, who previously made a run for the dais in 2016.

The three-way race comes amid a backdrop of sometimes contentious council meetings over the statue of President William McKinley — which has stood center stage in the plaza for more than 100 years — and a proposed large-scale, student housing project called The Village that has drawn concerns about traffic, noise and impacts to nearby neighborhoods.

Both Watson, who was appointed to his seat in April of 2017 after former Councilmember Mark Wheelley stepped down to take the city manager's post in Fortuna, and Pereira, first elected in 2014, voted with the council majority in February to remove McKinley.

But the bronze work by renowned Armenian sculptor Haig Patigian that survived the 1906 San Francisco earthquake to be dedicated to Arcata by a local farmer at a Fourth of July celebration has been resurrected, at least for the moment, via Measure M — a citizen ballot initiative that will put the statue's future to the city's voters.

The arguments submitted for and against the measure — along with the respective rebuttals — reflected much of the passionate and sometime terse — debate about whether the tribute to the nation's 25th president is a symbol of repression whose time has come or an important part of the city's history that should be preserved.

Shutterstock

Over in Eureka, a crowded field of 12 candidates will grace the ballot as residents cast votes under the true ward system for the first time since the late 1920s. Instead of council members being elected in a citywide vote, representatives of the city's five wards will now be chosen solely by registered voters within the individual district boundaries.

Eureka residents approved the move back in November of 2016, prompting the first rejiggering of the wards in 40 years to ensure each one has a roughly equal number of residents.

That's resulted in a bit of shuffle for incumbents Heidi Messner, Natalie Arroyo and Kim Bergel, who now reside in different wards than the ones they were elected to represent.

Three council seats — Ward 1, 3 and 5 — and the separately elected mayor's post are up for grabs in Humboldt County. Because Councilmember Marian Brady and Mayor Frank Jager are termed out, the filing period for the November election was not extended in Eureka.

Among those running for mayor are Messner, who was appointed to the seat in 2016 when what appeared up to the last minute to be a three-person race became a solo run after two other candidates dropped out. Now she's facing Susan Seaman, program director of the Arcata Economic Development Corporation, and Take Back Eureka founder Michelle Constantine for the primarily ceremonial post.

If Messner wins, she will be able to nominate a person to fill her Ward 2 seat (she now lives in Ward 5 but her current term runs until 2020) with council approval, which has been a trend set in recent years by Jager and now Supervisor Virginia Bass.

With Brady termed out of office, Ward 1 has a crop of four new hopefuls looking to take the seat: Caroline Brooks, co-owner of Caroline's TX BBQ and Johnson Auto Electric; Anthony Mantova, owner of Mantova's Two Street Music; Leslie Castelano, founder and artistic director of Synapsis; and Hailey Lamb, who works at Coast Central Credit Union.

The Ward 3 race includes Arroyo (who was elected in Ward 5), who works as a senior planner for a nonprofit and is an enlisted member of the U.S. Coast Guard Reserve; Jeannie Breslin, who has a background in public relations and marketing and launched an "I Like Eureka" campaign; and John Fullerton, a certified public accountant who ran unsuccessfully in 2016.

Things are a bit quieter over in Ward 5 where Bergel, who is switching over from Ward 3, is running against Joe Bonino, vice chair of the city's Planning Commission who previously ran for a council seat in 2012.

Blue Lake has two candidates for two seats — Elaine Hogan and Christopher Curran — but the filing period remains open with Councilmember Elizabeth Mackay choosing not to seek another term. The other seat is currently vacant.

A similar story was at play in Ferndale, where the race was still being set as the Journal went to print. Elementary school teacher Jennifer Fisk-Becker, who was previously appointed to fill a vacant council seat in June, marking the first woman to sit at that city's dais in 15 years — is unopposed for a two-year term. So far, Councilmember Michael Sweeney has put in his name for mayor while Stephen Avis and Robin Smith are vying for a four-year seat, but the filing period was extended because current Mayor Don Hindley and Councilmember Doug Brower did not seek reelection and Sweeney is looking to serve as mayor.

Fortuna was also having an extended nomination period with two of the incumbents — Tiara Brown and Doug Strehl — not going for another term, but the contenders to date include incumbent Sue Long, Mike Johnson and Jeremy Stanfield.

Ditto for Rio Dell, where incumbent Debra Garnes is running again but fellow councilmembers Tim Marks and Gordon Johnson are not. Also, putting their hats in the ring are Bryan Richter, Julie Woodall and John McManus, although McManus' signatures were still being verified on Monday.

Up in the northern reaches of Humboldt County, Trinidad has a full slate of candidates — not a small feat in a city of less than 400 — with six candidates vying for the council, including incumbents Susan Rotwein, Jim Baker and Dwight Miller along with business owner Mike Morgan, teacher Tom Davies and Brett Gregory, who previously served on the planning commission.

The election takes place on Nov. 6.

Week in Weed

Reaching Hmong Growers

By Jennifer Fumiko Cahill

jennifer@northcoastjournal.com

Ask any cannabis farmer in Humboldt County who's navigating the labyrinth of paperwork, legalese and filing requirements of going legit — it ain't easy. Now imagine feeling your way through that maze of fees, regulations and codes without the guiding thread of a lawyer or an advocacy group. In your second language.

That's what many Hmong growers are facing amid California's shift from prohibition to legalization.

In Trinity County, an organization called Conscious Cannabis Resource has been helping Hmong growers understand and share information about coming into compliance. "There is a language barrier definitely," says Victor Vang, a member of CCR and a cannabis cultivator himself. The Trinity Pines area in particular, where tracts of land have been subdivided and turned into grows, has a large population of Hmong growers, many of whom moved there from Humboldt County looking for cheaper land.

Vang says first-generation Hmong growers, who immigrated to the U.S. as refugees in the 1970s and 1980s after working with the CIA against the communist government in Laos, drew on their agricultural backgrounds and adapted to the mountain farming of cannabis. Folks with "a green thumb are chasing that cash crop. ... They're just trying to get a piece of the American pie."

Vang and the small organization, which counts only two paid staffers and a half dozen volunteers, provide translation assistance and try to give farmers the information they need to figure out whether they'll pursue permits and how. Without that help, Vang says most in the isolated, off-grid outpost would be relying on word of mouth. He estimates the group has made contact with some 400 farmers, though only a fraction have taken the path of compliance.

The tight-knit community has the same issues with leaving the black market as anybody, according to Vang, including fees, rising building expenses and dropping price per pound. Add social barriers in the mix and the challenge only grows. "There's a huge cultural clash," says Vang. "There's always a barrier between government and the people. ... We try to bridge that gap." It's no easy task given complaints he hears about police racial profiling and alleged theft. "We're in a no man's land," says Vang, and the perception is that "police aren't out there to assist them, police are out there to get them."

Here in Humboldt, neither he nor CCR's founder Mai Vue have heard of any formal outreach program working with Hmong farmers. "What we've seen across the board with the Hmong, Bulgarian and Latino populations," says Terra Carver, executive director of the Humboldt County Growers Alliance, "is there hasn't been a lot of outreach." In fact, Carver says, "We haven't had any [Hmong or Hmong-Americans] come through our doors."

The Humboldt County Planning and Building Department, which is tasked with reviewing the deluge of cannabis cultivation permits, doesn't have a mechanism in place for tracking how many Hmong have submitted applications. And while it has access to translation services, it hasn't received any requests for or required a Hmong translator yet.

Maybe Humboldt's Hmong cultivators are doing way better than most with legal red tape. Or maybe somebody's fully bilingual kids are really hustling out there. But it might be that a whole slice of Humboldt's cannabis farming population doesn't have the kind of access to vital information as, say, their white counterparts. And if the goal is to move as much of the industry into compliance as possible — taxed, regulated and safe for consumers — Humboldt is going to have to figure out how to reach everyone. ●

Floating Lantern Ceremony

Lanterns with finished messages and designs were lined up on the Arcata Plaza on Saturday morning.

Andy Sehic, of Arcata, launched her lighted lantern with a message, “Wishing all the people of the world to work on peace....,” on one side and a call for “Justice for Josiah” on another.

Eureka Teen Killed: The Humboldt County Coroner's Office on Monday identified the teenage boy fatally stabbed in Ocean View Cemetery on the night of Aug. 9 as 16-year-old Brandon Brocious of Eureka. Two suspects, including a male juvenile, have been arrested. POSTED 08.13.18

D Street Deaths: An uninjured baby boy was found in the same room as couple Astraia and Matthew Muir, who were found dead in their D Street home Aug. 3 after officers forced entry in what the Eureka Police Department described as a murder-suicide. Astraia Muir, a nurse, had recently filed for divorce, according to media reports. POSTED 08.09.18

Smoky Skies: North Coast air quality continues to be impacted by a series of wildfires burning in the region, including the Mendocino Complex — now the largest in California history, having scorched more than 350,000 acres as of Tuesday — which has been given an estimated containment date of Sept. 1. POSTED 08.10.18

CREATURES OF THE SHALLOWS

The bright, dreamy sea life in Humboldt's coastal waters

By Mike Kelly

newsroom@northcoastjournal.com

Photographs by Mike, Julie and Jen Kelly

The good news is that you don't have to go scuba diving on a tropical reef to see beautiful and charismatic sea creatures. We have our share of them right here along California's rocky North Coast. And many are in shallow water where snorkeling or careful rock hopping can reveal them. The bad news is that our water is always cold, usually rough and mostly murky. And the best tides for viewing are super early in the morning in the springtime or after dark in winter. However, during any decent low tide you can always see hermit crabs and it's possible to see brilliantly colored sea slugs, brilliant anemones and even an occasional octopus if you're lucky.

My family and I like to snorkel for the best results. And we usually focus on sea slugs (aka nudibranchs), bottom-dwelling fish, octopus and any oddballs. Most nudibranchs are easy to spot and they are cooperative for the camera. Bottom fish are more difficult to spot but are often cooperative and can even become aggressive during their winter spawning period. Octopus are also best seen at night but they will even occasionally leave the water to travel from pool to pool in broad daylight.

The cameras we use are simple waterproof point-and-shoot jobs, which have an advantage over professional gear with external strobes when shooting in tight quarters. Almost all our pictures are shot in macro mode with the lens often an inch or less from the subject, which is why the water looks so clear. And while open water may have 10 feet of visibility on a good day, large pools and protected backwater areas can clear up nicely at low tide. Of course, it doesn't actually feel like the tropics until you sit in front of the computer with the heater on to see if any pictures turned out.

ANEMONES

We have several species of colorful anemones on our local rocky shores. Some species of anemone exhibit much variation, so there's an endless supply of color.

Above: Giant green anemone with spider crab: We've noticed these small spider crabs associated with giant green anemones a couple of times.

There are other kinds of sea slug, but the nudibranchs are the most common and conspicuous. "Nudibranch" means naked "naked gill," and the gill is the bunny-tail plume visible in some of these pictures. Various nudibranchs are able to "borrow" toxins, stinging cells and other defensive material from their prey to incorporate into their own bodies.

While the tropics have many nudibranchs with absolutely psychedelic colors, they are less common in the hot, tropical intertidal zone than in our temperate zone. So we're pretty lucky, so far.

Clockwise from top left: Hopkins' rose sea slug. Hermissenda sea slug. Yellow-edged Cadlina sea slug. Yellow dorid sea slug.

Crispy Fried Garlic Chips

The ultimate garnish and bonus garlic oil

By Anthony Westkamper

tabletalk@northcoastjournal.com

Illustrations by Jacqui Langeland

I finally figured out a use for one of those big bags of pre-peeled garlic. Although I'm fond of the "smelly rose," I hate peeling the paper skins off them. Prepped cloves seem to show up in industrial portions so, cooking for only one, at least half the cloves always got green and fuzzy in my fridge before I could use them.

Munching thoughtfully on a flake that had browned in the bottom of a pan, it hit me: Fry the stuff up and use it on top of my salads. So, in true mad scientist fashion, I set up a program of experimentation. Lots of folks liked the products of my experiments. Even some I deemed less than successful. Here, I share my findings.

Uniformity of slice thickness is important. Although I take pride in my kitchen knife skills, I bought a mandolin to ensure all the slices cook in the same time. It also makes the process go much more quickly. I haven't found a mandolin with a pusher that works on this small scale. So I wear a cut-resistant glove to really get down there but avoid coloring the food red. I save the little stubs for other things.

I like olive oil for this. You want enough oil to cover/float the garlic using a frying pan like a shallow deep-fat fryer. To fry up half a bag, I use about half an inch in the bottom of my 10-inch fry pan. Have everything set up to strain out the oil before you start heating your pan, as you won't be able to stop in the middle. Keep a plate covered with paper towels close by so you can easily transfer the chips from the sieve. I reserve the cooled oil for cooking as it is nicely garlic flavored and refrigerates well.

Once your slices are in the oil, never stop stirring — even the best pots have hot spots. And keep close watch. The difference between done and overdone — which yields a bitter aftertaste — is less than 20 seconds.

Ingredients:

1 cup olive oil, or enough to fill a medium to large frying pan ½ inch deep
Peeled garlic cloves, rinsed and patted dry
Salt

Directions:

Cut the root end off all the cloves you intend to fry. Using the thinnest setting on my mandolin (⅛ inch is perfect), slice them all up, cross grain to make tiny ovals.

Place the slices in a bowl, salt them thoroughly and let sit for a few minutes to absorb before cooking.

Cover a heat-resistant plate with a couple of layers of paper towel to absorb excess oil. Have a couple more sheets handy to press down on top of the cooling chips. Have a fine mesh sieve and a small canning jar or can ready in the sink to receive the hot used oil.

Heat the oil over a medium-high burner until bubbles gather around a wooden spoon handle or chopstick when dipped into the pan (around 325 F). I usually sprinkle a few drops of water in the oil; when it starts to really sizzle, it's ready to go.

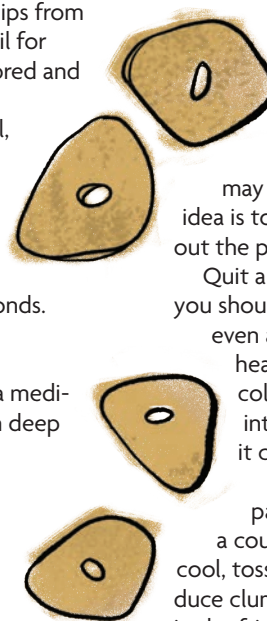

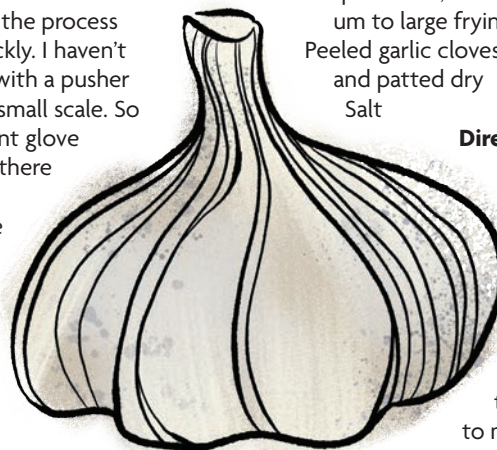

Add the sliced garlic to the oil as quickly as possible to ensure equal cooking time for all the pieces.

Stir the garlic gently and don't stop until it's done, which may take as long as 5 minutes. The idea is to circulate all the pieces throughout the pan for even cooking.

Quit about 10 seconds before you think you should — the chips keep cooking even after you remove them from heat. I look for a uniform light tan color. Using the sieve, strain the oil into the canning jar or can and let it cool.

Spread the garlic chips on the paper towels and blot them with a couple more sheets. Allow them to cool, tossing and mixing them a bit to reduce clumping. Store in a sealed container in the fridge. They last for weeks, if not longer. ●

music@northcoastjournal.com

I am a bit wiped out right now. Not from my normal complaints, mind you. I am mostly solid in my resolve during the working hours of my life. No, let me do something a little gross for you, dear readers, and pull back the factory door to show how the sausage is made. Let me tell you how I compile this column week by week. Like Sherlock Holmes, I have my local Baker Street Irregulars who do some diminished-return style gossiping for me. And apart from the schmoozing and information gathering I regularly attend to among the venues to bring these goods to print, I do spend (I am ashamed to admit) a weird amount of time on social media. And it has poisoned me as it has poisoned many of you reading this, I have no doubt. After studying the problem, I have come to the conclusion that most Americans sit in an ugly, uncanny valley of internet use, too little to be sharp and savvy, but too much to avoid the pitfalls of annoying trends and tragic clichés. Therefore, I suggest there should only be two kinds of data users: either you check your email a couple of times a day (normal business permitting) or you have regularly tried to buy a uranium-powered sword or North Korean Gundam Suit from the dark web. Nothing in between. That is my binary borderland. You can thank me for this draconian proclamation later.

Have a great week.

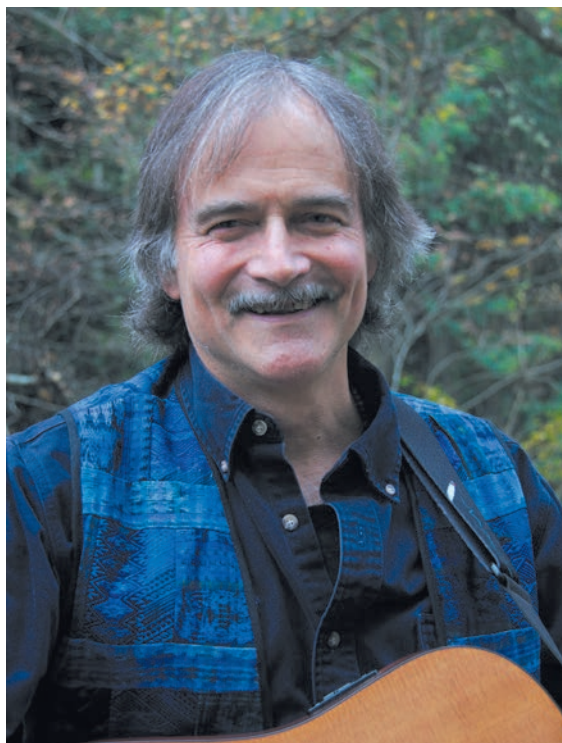

Thursday

Stella's back in town and with her, of course, is the busk-core street country act Gunsafe she fronts and will be playing a show with tonight at the Outer Space at 7 p.m. ($5). Joining the tattooed, traveling troubadours will be locals Lyndsey Battle and Julio Perdido, who both bring great sets and songs.

Friday

Mark Jenny is the guitar ripping half of Legends of the Mind, a local blues duo whom I have repped in this column before. Tonight he joins local scene mainstay Seabury Gould at 7 p.m. at the Westhaven Center for the Arts for an evening of summertime blues for all of you lovers caught between the spring and autumn. This should be a fun night off of the beaten path ($5-$20 sliding scale).

I'm going to ride this local vibe and suggest a mellow dive into the Eastern European sounds of Chubritza, which will be on full display in the warm, wood-worked environs of Café Mokka at 8 p.m. Did I mention that the music is free and the coffee is inexpensive and delightful? Now I have.

Saturday

The Alibi is putting on more concerts these days — nights, actually — and I couldn't be happier. This week's offering is an 11 p.m. burner with local honky tonkin' maestros Side Iron and sweaty, silent opening of Paris, Texas mirage makers Mojave Green. Only $5 is needed to get you in the door, so cough up the second cheapest Lincoln and have some fun, folks.

Sunday

Picture this: a gorgeous late summer's afternoon in the Humboldt Botanical Garden at the College of the Redwoods and a crack trio of American roots music players are peeling through a set of the best sort of songs from our shared national psyche. This vision of beauty can be yours at 1 p.m. on the aforementioned grounds if you choose to join The Delta Nationals for a Sunday matinee in the gardens. Admission is free for members, $8 for the general public and $5 for seniors. Grow some nice memories.

I first saw former Humbolshevik Ben Chasny's fine act Six Organs of Admittance in NYC about 15 years ago when I was a nihilistic young shthead who didn't care a gosh dang about a fellow traveler's sounds and just wanted a night out from my unheated cement-nightmare overshared Brooklyn "loft." And you know what? The show was a real corker. Psyched-out transmissions from a thick and vibed-out plane ruled the night. And you, too, can have a piece of that fatty goodness yourself tonight at the Miniplex at 8:30 p.m. Genius black-metal-cum-folk-headscratchers Xasthur share the opening bill with local haunters Die Geister Beschwören ($10).

Tuesday

Woof woof. Bow wow. Local "feral" jazz act Dogbone plays a semi-regular free one at the Mad River Brewery this evening at 6 p.m. Enjoy the patio while it's still warm, my puppies.

Wednesday

San Francisco folkster Jenny Gillespie Mason teamed up some time ago with Rob Shelton, a longtime engineer at John Vanderslice's magical Tiny Telephone studio to create the experimental pop phenom Sis, appearing tonight at the Outer Space for a steal of a show at 7 p.m. A mere $6 will get you through the door and also treat you to an auxiliary showing of two of Humboldt's finest feeling-makers: Mister Moonbeam and Comma Comma.

Full show listings in the Journal's Music and More grid, the Calendar and online. Bands and promoters, send your gig info, preferably with a high-res photo or two, to music@northcoastjournal.com.

WELCOME!

BEER, SUNSHINE, AND BEER

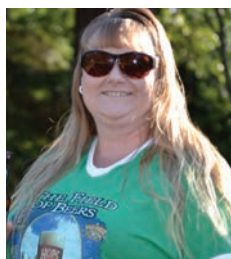

Welcome to the 15th Annual Hops In Humboldt! Hops features over 50 of the best breweries from across the country. Try unlimited samples of hundreds of different micro-brews, listen to two bands throughout the day, cruise different art and craft vendors, play beer games, eat amazing festival foods and vote for the “Taster’s Choice” award.

Hops quick tips! Taps: Open from 1 to 5 p.m. Pours: They are small for a reason. If you sample every beer, that would equate to over 34 pints. Pace yourself. Lines: They look long because people get their sample, then hang out, drink and bullshit. Nicely ask them if they’re in line. Most people will realize they are in the way and move. Lost or broken glasses: We don’t give replacements and don’t want to hear your sob story. Water: It’s free ... drink it. No Refunds: Don’t show up 15 minutes before taps close and complain you didn’t get enough beer. Smoking: Only do it in the smoking areas. If you’re drunk: DON’T DRIVE!!!

THE HISTORY

The story started 15 years ago when a small group of directors were trying to decide on a new event for Fortuna with a $1,000 grant provided by the Fortuna Business Improvement District. It took two years of planning, organizing and research. Fortuna Rotary and ESA offered to sponsor the event and Hops in Humboldt was born. The very first Hops event was held in 2004, in a small beer garden between the two playgrounds at Rohner Park. There were 10 breweries at best; all of our local breweries plus a few more from Northern California. It had a bluegrass theme with local bands and some random vendors.

As the event progressed throughout the years more breweries were added. Mixed genres of music became the norm, the Hops beer games and the Hops awards were born. Local homemade food and vendors started to make the event more unique. Partnerships with transportation companies were formed to provide safe transportation alternatives for attendees. The end of year five saw elbow-to-elbow room only in the festival and it was evident the festival had outgrown its location. In year six Hops decided to make the move off the green grass of Rohner Park to a larger home and current location on Bartow Field. That year Hops also started the process of shedding its sponsors and filed the paperwork to become its own nonprofit organization.

With a board of directors and a dedicated beer-loving committee that works year-round, Hops in Humboldt is bigger and better than ever!

Hops has proudly taken in hundreds of thousands of dollars in event income. The majority of our budget is put back into the community and spent with local businesses to make the event happen.

100 percent of the proceeds are given back to local groups each year who fall under our grant categories. To date over $425,000 in grants have been awarded to schools, youth groups, sports, senior services, drug and alcohol prevention and community projects.

Thank you for your support and sacrificing your sobriety in the name of community service! We hope you have a great time and enjoy the 15th annual Hops in Humboldt.

HOPS PROCEEDS WHERE DOES THE MONEY GO?

So, you come to Hops, shell out $40-$75 to get in and there are thousands of people there. They sell Hops gear and have games. Who gets the money? Hops in Humboldt Inc. that's who. Most folks don't know but we are a registered 501c3 nonprofit corporation. We have a board of directors, bylaws, website and everything. Through a grant process we distribute our proceeds to a variety of Humboldt County organizations that fall within five categories: schools, youth activities, senior programs, municipal programs, and drug and alcohol prevention. Anyone falling within one of these five categories is welcome to submit a grant application to Hops. Check out our website for details and our downloadable grant form. To date, Hops has granted over $425,000 to many local groups. Now that you know the whole truth, you can enjoy your beer that much more knowing your money is headed to a better place.

GAMES

Are you the DD and want to pass some time? Maybe you need a break between beers so your head can stop spinning! Or you just want to see which one of your friends has the highest BAC. Just come on down to the games booth. You can play our new D-R-I-N-K-O game. Drinko is just like Plinko, simply more fun because it's beer themed. Show your friends you're not that drunk by winning at Ring Toss. Or you can get rid of some spare change and win some prizes with our Coin Toss. Perhaps you're too tipsy for any of these games ... you can always spin our prize wheel. We have two breathalyzers this year with Hops stickers so you can record your BAC. All games are a dollar except the Coin Toss which is only coins. The games booth is located next to the merchandise booth in the middle of the field.

A Wrinkle in Time

What could be cooler than watching a movie that was filmed in the very place you're sitting? Movies in the Park: Disney's A Wrinkle in Time (2018) will allow you to do just that as the film, shot on location in Sequoia Park and featuring an A-list cast, will show at Sequoia Park on Saturday, Aug. 18. Music and cartoons start at 7 p.m. and the movie begins around 8:45 p.m. (free).

Take the kids for a walk on the wildlife side with Redwood Region Audubon Society and walk leader Alexa DeJoannis on a special Twilight Wildlife Walk on Saturday, Aug. 18 from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Layer up and meet on Second Street next to Target for this evening stroll on the northernmost segment of the new Eureka Waterfront Trail (free).

Caitlin McMurdy as Princess Caitlin

Bring your family, blankets, chairs and some snacks and enjoy Park Fest on Sunday, Aug. 19, 2 p.m. at Redwood Park (free). Stake out your spot on the grass for lively entertainment by local actors, dancers, singers and musicians, including performances created by community members participating in Plays in the Park's 24-Hour Play Festival.

They're Not Saying it's Aliens ...

But it's aliens.

They come from all corners of the observable universe, on the third Saturday in August, to the third rock from the sun (specifically the small town of Bridgeville), for the annual BridgeFest and Flying Saucer Contest (free admission). This year, aliens and earthlings will converge on the bridge — mile marker 24 on State Route 36 — Saturday, Aug. 18 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. for an out-of-this-world festival with contests, arts and crafts booths, live music, food, drink and hilarity.

What's big on the runways in Solaris this year? Slip into something metallic for a friendly competition with the other other-worldlies in the My Favorite Alien Costume Contest to find out. Or show off your stellar skills in the Intergalactic Flying Saucer Trials by flinging your creation off the bridge to see if it lands closest to the mark. Adults can also toss some rocks off the bridge for the Rock'N'Pot. If slinging a 50-lb. sack of soil over your shoulder and running through the Dirt Bag Muster for your chance to win a pallet of soil is more your thing, go for it. You could also earn the title of "Biggest Dirtbag." Seriously. After, replenish your strength and sanity enjoying barbecue provided by the Bridgeville Volunteer Fire Department and some homemade pie and other sweet treats. Little ones are welcome at this celestial soiree, too, and can romp in the bounce house or work the water dunk tank in the KidsZone while the young at heart peruse more than 30 arts and crafts booths while grooving to the galaxy's best live music.

Head out State Route 36 to the little town that can't be bought and have a saucy good time.

Let the Good Times Roe

Celebrate the Klamath River and the return of fresh Klamath River salmon — cooked the traditional way over an open fire — at the 56th annual Klamath Salmon Festival, Saturday Aug. 18 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Yurok Tribe Headquarters (free admission).

It's been two years since the Yurok Tribe was able to offer salmon at the festival due to record low runs in 2016 and 2017. This year's salmon lunch, which includes a salmon steak, three homemade side dishes and water, will be served at 11 a.m. ($12 adults, $10 seniors and children under 10). Festivities start early at 7:30 a.m. with a veteran's breakfast (free for all current and past service members) followed by the Ney-Puey Color Run at the Yurok Justice Center at 10 a.m. and the parade down Klamath Boulevard at 10:30 a.m. Bring your family and chums to check out the many cultural demonstrations, classic car show, Indian card game tournament, kids activities, softball tournament and around 100 vendors selling gifts, artwork and treats all day. At 11 a.m., Yurok youth share songs and stories in the Yurok language on the main stage. At noon, the Stick Game Tournament and the 3-on-3 Basketball Tournament begin, as well as the first set from local rockers Blue Rhythm Revue. New this year, expert traditional basket weavers representing several local tribes will showcase ceremonial regalia, basketry and other cultural objects. Additional festival events include artist and author Lyn Risling reading from her children's book Coyote at the Big Time at the Klamath River Book Nook, Friday, Aug. 17 at 5:30 p.m. and a hydroplane race on the lower Klamath River on Sunday, Aug. 19 at noon.

Monsters Back from the Past

BlackKkKlansman and The Meg

By John J. Bennett

filmiland@northcoastjournal.com

Reviews

BLACKKKLANSMAN. I've never subscribed to the notion that hatred is borne of fear. There's truth to it, I suppose, but it has always seemed to me an attempted defense of something indefensible. Fear is natural and necessary, hatred is useful only in fomenting hatred. To offer fear as the source of hatred seems to downplay the cultivated ignorance, the willfulness and inherent violence required to turn one into the other. It's a rhetorical maneuver that provides undeserved leeway to the intentionally shitty among us. Racists, for example.

Which isn't necessarily the optimal starting point in discussing Spike Lee's BlackKkKlansman but it is the point to which I arrived after watching it, so here we are. And that, to me, is one of the masterful things about the movie: It carries us through such an immersive story set in a re-imagined past with such perceived ease that we can almost forget the ongoing national crisis to which it speaks. Almost.

In the mid-1970s, Ron Stallworth (John David Washington) joins the Colorado Springs Police Department. As the first African-American on the force, he navigates a perhaps not-unexpected course among his cohort, some of whom are virulent bigots. (Just for semi-contemporary context, Colorado Springs may be one of the whitest cities in the country. It is home to NORAD, the US Air Force Academy and, at least at one time, both The Promise Keepers and the Ultimate Frisbee Players Association). As Ron transcends the needling and outright racism of his workplace, he continues to climb the ladder to detective. Sent undercover to monitor a speaking engagement by Kwame Ture (Corey Franklin) hosted by the Colorado College Black Student Union, he is immediately taken by the organization's undeniably charming president Patrice Dumas (Laura Harrier). And as much as he believes in his work as police, Ron is equally drawn to the words of Ture and the electric, nourishing atmosphere of the student union. Just as he and Patrice begin a tentative relationship, Ron calls a phone number from a newspaper ad and sets in motion an undercover investigation of the Ku Klux Klan. While Ron infiltrates the local chapter by phone, white detective Flip Zimmerman (Adam Driver) becomes Ron Stallworth in person, earning the trust of an assortment of variously vicious, maniacal and outright stupid white men (played with uncomfortable aplomb by Ryan Eggold, Jasper Pääkkönen and Paul Walter Hauser, among others). As the investigation wears on, it becomes clear that the local Klansmen are planning an attack, possibly on the Black Student Union, possibly to coincide with a visit by the Klan's national head, the ridiculously pompous David Duke (Topher Grace), with whom Ron has become phone-pals.

As much as this is a crackling tale of intrigue, Lee refuses to bow to cinematic convention. There is tension and excitement aplenty, but in his hands BlackKkKlansman becomes as much a character study as it is a procedural or an action movie. Flip is forced to confront dormant notions of his own ancestry, aspects of himself he found inconsequential until he came to denigrate them vocally to play a role. Ron sits with the idea that, to many of his peers, being a cop will always mean he is the enemy. All of this is buoyed by the gorgeous, throw-back aesthetic of the piece. Shot on film by Matthew Libatique, the movie has the saturated, deep shadowed look of a mid-1970s blaxploitation picture, and moves with similarly deliberate, loping pace. It is possessed of a sort of cultural context and narrative nuance that few, if any, of that genre could boast, of course. It's made all the more heartbreaking by the fact that, while it so effectively summons the looks of a bygone era, the crises it discusses — the notion of hatred as currency, of racism as acceptable — are as immediate as ever. R. 135M. MINOR.

THE MEG. There isn't any cultural relevance to this. Nothing about it is important, or significant even. Jason Statham goes after a gigantic prehistoric shark (a megalodon, for those keeping track) and that is enough.

Statham can be/has been problematic over the years, in as much as he is one of the greatest action leads of all time who has appeared in some absolute drags. Like a certain Fast and Furious spin-off co-star, most of the movies in which he appears are beneath him. Which is all well and good, ultimately: at least he's not trying to be something he will never be. But it's better for everybody when

"Remember: You have to record them saying the N-word or it doesn't count."
The BlackKlansman

the movies are at least fun. And The Meg is just that: brisk, pacey with better effects and far better performances than any of us had any reason to expect. Even in 3D, I enjoyed it immensely. PG13. 113M. BROADWAY, FORTUNA, MILL CREEK.

ALPHA. Dramatization of an Ice Age hunter who teams up with a wolf to survive. PG13. 96M. BROADWAY

CRAZY RICH ASIANS. Constance Wu stars as an American who travels to Singapore to meet her fiancé's (Henry Golding) wildly wealthy family, including his disapproving/terrifying mother (the iconic Michelle Yeoh). PG13. 120M. BROADWAY, FORTUNA, MILL CREEK.

THE KING. Road-trip documentary by Eugene Jarecki exploring the legacy of Elvis and America's crumbling democracy. R. 147M. MINIPLEX

CLOSE ENCOUNTERS OF THE THIRD KIND (1977). Richard Dreyfuss finds out it's ... aliens. PG. 138M. BROADWAY.

Continuing

CHRISTOPHER ROBIN. Pooh gets real with Ewan McGregor as the boy from the books. PG. 104M. BROADWAY, FORTUNA, MILL CREEK, MINOR.

EATING ANIMALS. Natalie Portman narrates a documentary about American animal agriculture based on Jonathan Safran Foer's memoir. Maybe skip the butter on your popcorn. NR. 94M. MINIPLEX.

EIGHTH GRADE. Elsie Fisher plays a girl struggling through the final days of junior high in director Bo Burnham's film, capturing the terror, intensity and immediacy of adolescence with rawness and compassion. 93M. MINOR.

THE INCREDIBLES 2. This fun, clever and funny sequel is worth the wait, with the returning cast and the right villains for our times. Craig T. Nelson and Holly Hunter. PG. 118M. BROADWAY.

MAMMA MIA! HERE WE GO AGAIN. A fun jaunt to Greece with Cher, Meryl Streep, a whopping 16 ABBA numbers, a wedding, reunited octogenarian soulmates, unplanned pregnancies and Pierce Brosnan unfortunately singing again. PG13. 114M. BROADWAY.

MISSION: IMPOSSIBLE - FALLOUT. A lean, engaging return for the MI team, led by Tom Cruise's Ethan Hunt. Excellent stunts, fights and effects raise the bar in this sixth and best installment of the franchise. PG13. 147M. BROADWAY, FORTUNA, MILL CREEK.

THE SLENDER MAN. Teen girls summon the internet-driven urban legend to rescue their friend. PG13. 93M. BROADWAY, MILL CREEK.

THE SPY WHO DUMPED ME. Neither the formidable Mila Kunis nor the genius weirdo Kate McKinnon hits her stride in this movie that aims for kinetic, ultra-modern movie violence and gendered high-comedy. R. 116M. BROADWAY, FORTUNA.

THREE IDENTICAL STRANGERS. An engrossing, frustrating documentary about triplets separated at birth, whose happy reunion is blighted by questions surrounding their adoptions. PG13. 147M. MINIPLEX.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF
GERALD PATRICK RENNER
CASE NO. PR180179

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of GERALD PATRICK RENNER, GERALD P. RENNER, GERALD RENNER, JERRY RENNER

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Petitioner Patricia M. Renner

In the Superior Court of California, County of Humboldt. The petition for probate requests that Patricia M. Renner be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by court. THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on August 30, 2018 at 2:00 p.m. at the Superior Court of California, County of Humboldt, 825 Fifth Street, Eureka, in Dept.: 6. IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate

Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk. ATTORNEY FOR PETITIONER: Daniel E. Cooper Morrison, Morrison & Cooper 1437 Third Street Eureka, CA 95501 Filed: July 30, 2018 SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA COUNTY OF HUMBOLDT

The full mole crab experience

By Mike Kelly

washedup@northcoastjournal.com

If you are like millions of others, you often wonder what it's like to be a Pacific mole crab (Emerita analoga). I'm capitalizing on this trend with my Mole Crab Virtual Reality Experience.

The basic program is available as a free download for use with your personal VR headset. The big money is in mole crab accessories.

With the basic program, you'll experience the day-to-day life of a mole crab (or "sand crab," if you prefer). That basic experience includes riding the surf up and down as the tide goes in and out. As a little wave washes up the beach on an incoming tide, you'll experience riding up the beach with it. Then you'll dig into the sand to hold your position until the next wave pushes you farther up the beach. What fun!

But watch out. Sometimes the surf is so crowded that you can't dig into the sand through all the other mole crabs. Then you risk being washed back down the beach and being eaten by a surf perch. The same thing happens in reverse as the tide goes out. If you don't successfully ride the waves back down the beach, you'll be stranded where you may be eaten alive by hordes of scavenging isopods.

After experiencing the VR version of a mole crab in the surf, you'll definitely want to try it for real. So I'm selling a full-body, fiberglass mole crab suit to protect you from getting all scuffed up by sand. The suit comes complete with arm and leg attachments to mimic a mole crab's sand-digging pereopods. You'll be able to dig in backwards, leaving only your eyes and antennae exposed.

To feed like a real mole crab, you'd use your antennae to filter organic particles from the water. To simulate this experience, I offer snack-sized bags of powdered mole crab feed made from all-natural organic fish shit. Sprinkle some on your mock antennae and lick it off.

I know what you're thinking but you'll have to use your own organs for mole crab sex. However, your suit will greatly aid in courtship. When you are rolling around in the surf wearing your suit, look for others doing the same. When you find someone of your mutually-preferred sexual orientation, you'll know instantly that you are made for each other. I'm selling copies of the movie From Here to Eternity for an example of how to properly bang in the shallows.

Unlike a human, a lady mole crab carries up to 45,000 fertilized eggs under her abdominal flap. The eggs are bright orange and are apparently yummy. Ravens on our local beaches know to dig up gravid mole crabs and eat their eggs. Unfortunately, a member of my focus group is suing me for injuries suffered while testing the ova-eating bird beak accessory. So I probably won't be offering it as part of The Mole Crab VR Experience.

To take your mole crab experience to its natural conclusion, you'll want to be eaten alive. To mimic a surf perch, you'll have to find your own great white shark. But we're proud to offer a set of 100 starving armadillos to mimic the scavenging isopods. Be sure to submit a selfie to our website before the armadillos claw into your vital organs and you'll be eligible for 10 percent off your next purchase! ●
